

Hope for Healing.org

Facts and Stats Children in Domestic Violence Households

At least 70% of men who batter their wives, sexually or physically abuse their children. All children suffer from witnessing their father assault their mother. (End Domestic Violence.Com)

In over half of all domestic violence situations, the children are also physically abused. (National Domestic Violence Media Campaign, 1995).

Children exposed to partner violence exhibit symptoms similar to children who are physically and sexually abused, including the perpetuation of violence. (Davidson, 1995)

Girls whose fathers batter their mothers are 6.5 times more likely to be sexually abused by their fathers than are girls from non-violent homes. (The Bridge: <http://www.thebridgetohope.com>)

Almost ten percent of high school age girls said “yes” when asked if “a boyfriend or date has ever forced sex against your will.” (The Commonwealth Fund Survey of the Health of Adolescent Girls, November 1997)

The U.S. Advisory Board on Child Abuse suggests that domestic violence may be the single major precursor to child abuse and neglect fatalities in this country. (U.S. Advisory Board on Child Abuse and Neglect, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, A Nation's Shame: Fatal Child Abuse and Neglect in the United States: Fifth Report, 1995)

Children experiencing domestic violence at home are more likely to attempt suicide, abuse drugs and alcohol, run away from home, engage in teenage prostitution, and commit sexual assault crimes. (Wolfe, D.A., Wekerle, C., Reitzel, D. and Gough, R., “Strategies to Address Violence in the Lives of High Risk Youth.” In Peled, E., Jaffe, P.G. and Edleson, J.L. (eds.), Ending the Cycle of Violence: Community Responses to Children of Battered Women. New York: Sage Publications. 1995.)

Some common effects of domestic violence on children include:

- feeling responsible for the abuse given to their mother
- constant anxiety and grief
- fears of abandonment and physical harm
- isolation
- excessive absence from school
- stress
- eating disorders
- violent behavior

Source: Sanctuary for Families Staff